Such circumstances include situations we've heard reported by members where their parent organization submitted a report on the General PRF distributions but the nursing home did not submit a report for its Targeted SNF Distribution. Additional circumstances apply and are outlined in this LeadingAge article on the newly-announced Late Reporting Request process. Members who have discovered errors in their RP1 report must go through a separate process to make corrections or revise their RP1 reports. This is also outlined in the article.

FROM HHS: Give Your Community a Boost. The FDA published the FDA Voices: “Give Your Community a Boost: Combatting Misinformation Through Communication and Research,” by RADM Richardae Araojo, Pharm.D., M.S., Associate Commissioner for Minority Health and Director of the Office of Minority Health and Health Equity. April is National Minority Health Month, and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services selected “Give Your Community a Boost” as this year’s theme. Over the last two years, the FDA has worked tirelessly with our U.S. government partners, medical product manufacturers, international partners, and additional stakeholders to address COVID-19. Although the pandemic continues, significant strides have been made in efforts to protect the health of Americans. The FDA authorized and approved multiple vaccines, authorized several treatments, increased available testing options such as at-home tests and provided countless educational resources in a variety of languages.

Advocacy Alerts and Hill News:

Aging Services Provisions in Administration’s Proposed FY 23 Budget. We shared an analysis of the housing related provisions of the President’s proposed FY 23 budget and what they could mean for aging services organizations last week. Here is the Department of Health and Human Services counterpart, with some Department of Labor, USCIS, and other elements too. (Note: Medicare and Medicaid, along with other entitlement/mandatory programs are not part of this discretionary budget.) The President’s budget is not the final word, of course. Congress has a lot of work to do on the budget before it is finalized in time for the beginning of FY 23 on October 1, 2022. (And it’s more likely we’ll see some Continuing Resolutions as we move closer to midterm elections, rather than a final FY 23 budget put in place on time.) However, it is possible to get insights into what the Administration is planning to prioritize and focus on by looking closely at this proposed budget.

Congressional Update: Unfortunately, the latest COVID funding agreement has hit another snag that will more than likely imperil Senate-passage before Congress breaks for its two-week Easter recess. Without a deal on amendments Republicans want to offer over immigration and border enforcement, the Senate rejected a procedural motion needed to begin debate on the bill, which would provide $10 billion for the Department of Health and Human Services to buy more therapeutics, vaccines and testing supplies and prepare for future virus variants. This isn’t the first obstacle that the COVID funding agreement has encountered. The $10 billion agreement is nowhere near the $22.5 billion initially sought by the Administration, and $5 billion in foreign pandemic assistance was also stripped from the deal. So stay tuned as Congress continues to wrestle with additional funding for COVID assistance.
